

English Literary Society, 2020-21

Atoshi Sikdar and Mahima Ladha, Club Secretaries

The English Literary Society is a club that celebrates the rich territory of literature in both written and oral tradition. The club aspires to create a fun yet informative atmosphere for both literature enthusiasts and curious population.

The year of 2020-21 solicited a fresh perspective to undertake the challenge of organizing online events. In this wake, the club has concentrated on planning more media-based interactive events for its members to establish a sense of community in a time of social isolation. Although the club adopted a bimonthly theme pattern this year, the notion of "inclusivity" and "feasibility" has been the core ideas explored among the diversity of events.

Unlike the general presumption, the club organizes activities that go "beyond the scope of big old dusty books." Staple such as book club/poetry discussion is organized alongside events like poetry slams, fanfiction writing competitions, email letter exchanges etc. But this is just a glimpse. The club encourages students to come and partake in its various activities that will push them to go beyond the daily.

2020-21:

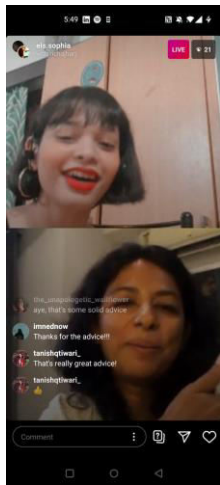

(the secs + senior executives)= the team

Poetry discussion: Siken's Litany of Certain Things that are crossed out

From Writing to Publishing: Live Q/A with Richa Jha

2019-20:

2018-19:

