

“Great theatre is about challenging how we think and encouraging us to fantasize about a world we aspire to.” – Willem Dafoe

The biggest goal, for this year in particular, was to sustain the same comfort SCEDA brought to everyone who was associated with it in the past. Keeping this in mind, our goals were intertwined with the theme of 2020, “Expression in the year of Containment.” Despite having been robbed of the college experience this year, we sought to bring theatre to you in a way wherein you could acquaint yourself with the stage before being able to step out onto it.

The new normal brought with it a new medium but retains the same essence of making theatre accessible to everyone and allowing it to be a safe space. As Sophia College English Dramatics Association, we’ve conducted a series of activities over the years. Essentially what started with theatre workshops and our Annual Play, we have moved onto online workshops that deal with every facet of theatre ranging from play-readings, scriptwriting, character building to musical theatre and the works. We hope to bring to you more activities that’ll enrich your knowledge and allow you to better understand all the work that goes into making magic on stage.

The physical distance hasn’t been easy but the club has felt the connection revived with the participation in the events that were hosted, the willingness and excitement brought by students from all three years, and the encouragement we’ve received in creating more opportunities for growth and making our little family a lot bigger. Despite the circumstances, the number one rule of theatre was followed: which is to accept what’s given and turn it into something unique.
