Date: 17th January, 2024

Resource Person: Ayushee and Gurpreet Saini

Time: 2:30 onwards

Venue: Convention Centre, Sophia College

Number of Attendees: 20

A celebration of words, voices, and stories is called a spoken fest. Spoken is a two-day sentiments festival with multiple stages of performing arts. Expect to experience a wide range of emotions, including humor, tears, wonder, introspection, and—above all—a sense of community filled with poetry, music, theatre, and storytelling (plus possibly a few more that our curation team won't share with us just yet). There is one non-negotiable criteria at Spoken: you have to be prepared to be who you are completely, unabashedly, and totally. Their goal for this year was to tour campuses and give a variety of performances. Ayushee Ghoshal and Gurpreet Saini, two of their panelists, visited Sophia to do their spoken poetry presentations.

After presenting the fundamentals, they forced the interested audience members to create their own poetry using a variety of techniques. In addition to having a great time during this session, our audience made some really good attempts at creating poetry.
